River Yields Body Of Suicide Victim

A battered body, found by fishermen in an eddy near Potomac River Island yesterday, was tentatively identified as James A. Woodbury, 1412 N. Hartford st., Arlington.

Two weeks ago Woodbury, 32, a Central Intelligence Agency analyst, jumped with his wife, Dorothy, from a rocky ledge into the Potomac's Great Falls and were swept into the Spout.

Mrs. Woodbury was swept to the shore and is now under treatment in the Washington Center but her husband disappeared.

The body was identified as Woodbury's through a ring and a watch.
